SPECIALIST SEMINARS

In our specialist seminars, we regularly offer different topics on ventilation and air-conditioning technology. As a technological leader, we provide you with the latest information on current trends and developments and introduce innovative, efficient and sustainable ventilation concepts.

Topics:

- User-oriented ventilation concepts
- Design for energy efficiency
- Ventilation systems for laboratories
- Maintenance and refurbishment of ventilation components
- Networked systems

TROX ON SITE

We appreciate that it's often difficult to take a whole day out of the office. Should there be sufficient numbers of participants, we can also provide on-site or local training that is individually tailored to your company and requirements. Topics and duration can then be coordinated with you on an individual basis.

If this is something you may be interested in, please get in touch with us.

SYMPOSIUMS

TROX regularly holds symposiums with partners from the ventilation and air-conditioning technology sector throughout the UK.

These symposiums give visitors the chance to obtain information on current topics in the sector from the market leaders and experts and to discuss these topics with them. Well-known industry insiders give valuable tips, introduce new standards and their application, and explain their planning and implementation using project references. Here, the focus is on tested and certified safety as well as efficient and sustainable solutions.

TROX AS A SPEAKER

Within the framework of TROX ACADEMY, our speakers take part in various events and expert conferences. Together with other experts, they discuss various topics and provide valuable information along with the latest concepts. Use the opportunity to further your training on a regular basis and to meet the experts.
